

World Languages and Cultures B.A.

- Highly flexible major that allows students interested in French, German, Italian, and Spanish to deepen their linguistic proficiency and gain a deeper knowledge of the literatures, cultures, and traditions associated with these languages.
- Multiple pathways: possibility of focusing intensely on a single language, combining their study of a primary language with additional coursework in a second language, or integrating courses in Linguistics and Translation Studies into their study of language, literature and culture.
- Perfect for any profession: No matter their particular focus, students graduating with a degree in World Languages and Cultures will have acquired linguistic and practical skills along with an awareness of global culture that will prepare them for the global workplace.

Foundation requirement:
Choose one of the following:		4
LNGS 11100	Global Screen Cultures
LNGS 11200	Intersections of Race, Language, Literature, and Power in World Cultures
LNGS 12000	Introduction to the Art of Translation
LNGS 23200	Introduction to Linguistics
Core language study:
20 credits in a single language, FREN, GERM, ITAL, or SPAN, numbered 10100 or above.* 		20
Focused study area: ***
Choose one of the following tracks: *		12
1. focused study in a single language : all 12 credits in continued study of the core language
2. focused study in an additional language : 12 credits of study in an additional language
3. focused study in linguistics and translation : 12 credits of study in linguistics and/or translation studies.
Capstone:
LNGS 40000	Capstone in World Languages and Cultures	1
Total credits:		37

* A minimum of four credits of Core Language Study must be at the 300-level or above.

 No more than eight credits of 100-level courses can be included in Core Language Study.

 No more than eight credits of 100-level courses can be included in the Focused Study Area.

* Students must determine their focused area of study no later than the spring semester of the junior year, and in consultation with their major advisor. The focused study area is noted on the transcript.